hearing the target area the aircraft was struck by shrapnel. The fuselage was pierced in many places. Two more large holes were torn in the airframe, one in the horizontal tail and the other in the mid-upper turret. The hydraulic gear was damaged and much oil seeped away and caught fire. O./Shiner returned to his post and, although his turret was unserviceable, he continued the fight. In a few more odd, W/O Robertson completed a successful attack and afterwards flew the damaged aircraft to base. He displayed great courage and tenacity. S. DISTRIBUTING FLYING MEDAL

This airman was the pilot of an aircraft detailed to attack Newberg on one night in March, 1944. During the operation the aircraft was repeatedly attacked by fighters and sustained extensive damage. A fire commenced, but Sgt. Glass, by his gallant and determined efforts, succeeded in extinguishing the flames. Later, whilst over the North Sea on the homeward flight, the pilot was forced to bring the aircraft down on to the water. Two wounded members of the crew were in danger of losing their lives, but were saved by Sgt. Glass, who also assisted other members of the crew into the dinghy. He proved a tower of strength in most distressing circumstances.
